The intent is to place the more experienced/skilled 8-year-old players in a league that best matches their talent/skill. The selection process is based solely on an evaluation of registered players. To be eligible, players must have played one year of the AA division and must participate in the evaluation. There are no exceptions. It should be noted that players are not required to move to the Minors division, if chosen.
- * A small group of players who are baseball age 9 may be asked to play another year in the AA division. The selection process is based solely on an evaluation of registered players. It should be noted that players chosen to move to the AA division are chosen to further develop baseball skills and place them with players with the same skill level.

It should be noted that 11 year old players are not required to move to the major division, if chosen.
- * All players who are baseball age 12 will be asked to play on a majors league team. An exception to this would apply to 12 year olds playing baseball in Foxboro for the first time and not selected by a major league team. All 12 year old players must have played one year of the minors division or participate in the evaluation. There are no exceptions. If a first year player does not attend evaluations he/she will be placed on a minors roster.
